for combining references is what the combination of disclosures taken as a whole would suggest to one of ordinary skill in the art. In re McLaughlin, 170 USPQ 209 (CCPA 1971) references are evaluated by what they suggest to one versed in the art, rather than by their specific disclosures. In re Bozek, 163 USPQ 545 (CCPA) 1969. In this case, the method of mounting a mating connector in a tray of Bittihn was modified by providing an inserting module as taught by Briggs to align with a mating connector by a spring through the first and second guide holes/guide pins coupling with the first and second guide pins/guide holes.
